The Costa de la Luz is the south west corner of Spain, running from Gibraltar round to the Portuguese border. It is still largely undiscovered, undeveloped, unspoilt, and for most of the year uncrowded.

Compared to other areas of Spain like the Costa del Sol it is still very Spanish and most people who come here are looking for "real Spain". Traditionally property in this area has been cheaper than on the better known costas and in the current market conditions there are bargains available and many people believe it is a good time to invest for the long term in property.
